

Careers Information
Guide for Parents/Carers
and Early Leavers

If you are leaving college and are unsure what to do next we have compiled a list of resources in this guide to help you. Leaving College may not have been part of your plan and you may be concerned about what to do next.

There are many options available to you with your future progression. This guide also gives you some suggestions as to how you can start your research and planning.

What is Raising the Participation Age (RPA)?

The government has increased the age to which all young people in England are required to continue in education or training. Young people are still allowed to leave school at 16, but must continue in some form of learning until the age of 18.

What counts as learning?

- stay in full-time education, for example at a college
- start an apprenticeship or traineeship
- spend 20 hours or more a week working or volunteering, while in part-time education or training

What is an apprenticeship?

Apprenticeships combine a full-time job with training. They provide you with the skills you need for your chosen career that will also lead to nationally recognised qualifications. As an apprentice, you earn while you learn.

What is a traineeship?

Designed to help young people who don't yet have the appropriate skills or experience, traineeships provide the essential work preparation training to secure an apprenticeship or employment.

What to do next:

Take a deep breath and don't panic!

Make a list of what is important to you, your strengths and interests. This will help you begin to think about what your next step might be.

Review different options that are available. You can use this guide to help you explore these.

Talk to friends or family about your skills and options you are considering. You can also speak to a Careers Adviser at College to help you to review different options (email careers@bhasvic.ac.uk).
